His wife, a religious woman, who died last spring, told Curly that in six months hence he would be lying at her side. The fatal day found the prophesy fulfilled. The time was up vesterday. Curly's last utterance was to call for his mother. How universally is it that when calamity overtakes the strong man his mind goes back to his mother. "She was my triend-I had but her-ne

The First National bank building, on the orner of Maine and First streets, is now nearly ready for occupancy, and the money, books and safes will be moved into the new quarters before another issue of this paper. The building is the finest, most commodio and best arranged institution of the kind, probably, south and west of Lawrence in this state. It is of brick, two stories above the basement of fourteen teet each, with excavated sidewalks at each front. The banking floor is four feet above the sidewalk. The en'rance s at the corner by a very fine set of fancy, cirular, east-iron steps. The sidewalk is laid in Osage City flagging, and is one of the best jobs in the state. The windows are 4x11 feet, of two-light French-plate glass, arched and surounted by galvanized iron caps of neat design. The cornice is of galvanized iron, is very elaborate, and was manufactured by O. P. Bowman, of Emporia The brick and mason work was done by Longbottom & Hartle. The brick walls of the south and west fronts are being stained, oiled and tack-pointed. The oundation of the building rests on growing, and the vault, one of the largest and strongest in the state, rests upon a foundation of solio nason work of immense stones, and starts below the basement. Fisk, the contrator, is taking especial pains with the inside work. The counters and easings are rich and co tly. The second story has been leased to the Odd Fellows and Masons, and is reached by an airy cast-iron stairway from First street. The total cost of the superstructure is something over not only of the building, but of the enterprise man, Richard III; W. J. Marshall, military; that secured the erec ion of such an edifice so early in our history as a town.

The counties of Sedgwick, Summer, Cowley and Butler comprise an area of the best agricultural land west of the Mississippi valley. The Arkansas runs diagonally through the several counties named, forming of itself an extensive valley ranging from seven to twelve miles in width. Other streams of less mufinitude, such as the Little Arkansas, Nenescah, Walnut and Whitewater rivers, Slate, Bluff, Spring, Gypsum, Chickolm and Coowskin erseks, diversify the country with fertile valleys. The soil of the valley and uplands is a rich sandy loam, several feet in depth. Vegetation of all kinds is unsurpassed. (Simate temperate, equable and healthy. Thousands of acres of land are open to settlement under the pre-emption laws for the sale of the Osage Indian lands. Immigration is pouring in rapidly,
